Stained Glass Crosses

When it comes to stained glass designs, windows and church furnishings featuring crosses clearly represent the very essence of the Christian faith. For church leaders looking for a fitting way to welcome parishioners and show them they are in the company of people who worship Jesus as their personal savior, stained glass crosses are an ideal choice. For those who believe that Christ died for the sins of man, a stained glass cross is much more than merely an eye-catching embellishment. It is a testament to the supreme sacrifice made by both God the Father and Jesus, one that gave all men and women hope that they might enter the Kingdom of Heaven after life on Earth comes to its inevitable end.

Significance of Stained Glass Crosses and Design Options

People of all faiths throughout the world recognize the cross as the unifying emblem of Christianity. Regardless of whether one is Catholic or Protestant, the cross symbolizes the love Jesus had for His followers and all of mankind. He willingly shed His blood for all sinners when He was crucified. When people view stained glass crosses, many may also reflect on the fact that Christ's passing on the cross was not the end. He rose again on the third day and in doing so triumphed over death.

Anyone in the market for a stained glass cross should keep in mind that other elements can also be included in these types of stained glass windows. Religious subjects combined with the cross shape will instantly give stained glass windows an additional dimension that can make them even more inspirational. Just a few ideas include stained glass crosses with psalms or important verses from the Bible, stained glass images of angels or saints, depictions of Christ's Passion and the painful events that led up to His crucifixion, stained glass images of the Virgin Mary with Jesus as an infant or young boy, or a stained glass cross showing Christ in His risen form. Whichever option you choose for your stained glass cross, you can be certain you are getting a piece of church stained glass that will hold timeless appeal to all those who gather in your church or cathedral.
